

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Mrs. Maria Root celebrated her 94th birthday last Saturday in Burlington.

Repairs which will cost $8,000 are to be made on the jail at Bennington and work on the same has already commenced.

Over 100 children were among the exhibitors at the home garden fair held by the Parent-Teachers' association last Saturday in Burlington.

The breaking of a belt four feet in width Monday necessitated shutting down all of the machinery in the main building of the Holden-Leonard woolen mill at Bennington.

Horace J. Clark of New Orleans, La., a son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Clark of Poulney, has been promoted to a superintendency in the Pullman Car Co. with headquarters in Houston, Tex.

Miss Christy E. Williams, the Randolph girl who as a companion at Linden lodge in Brattleboro, came into public notice last winter by carrying in several images of women, was married recently to Scott L. Barler of Brattleboro.

Mrs. Sarah Sabin, aged nearly 77 years, was found dead Tuesday at her home in St. Albans, when her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Sabin, called her to dinner. Acute gastritis is said to have been the cause. She was not feeling well in the morning and went to lie down before dinner.

Robert H. Wilson, aged 23 years, a native of Lyndonville and a government inspector at a dam on the Ohio river at New Martinsville, W. Va., was instantly killed when one of the concrete buckets crushed him against a form. Mr. Wilson graduated from the Lyndon institute in 1910 and from Norwich university in 1914. His fiancée, Mrs. Lucille Williams of New Martinsville, came to Lyndonville with the body, where the funeral was held and interment made.

William A. Lawrence, a resident of Bristol for the last 34 years, and a native of Monkton, where he was born 59 years ago, died of heart failure at a retreat at Springfield, Mass., Tuesday. Mr. Lawrence had represented Bristol in the legislature in both houses. He had also been president of the Addison County Fair association. At the time of his death he was a director of the Middlebury National bank. He was an Odd Fellow and a Free Mason. His second wife was burned to death in a railroad wreck at Vergennes in 1906.

Bennington and vicinity were visited Monday night by one of the most severe electrical storms in years. Two barns belonging to A. E. Jepson on the Pownal road were destroyed by fire, causing a loss of about $1,100, with $400 insurance. The home of W. C. Clark was struck by lightning and seven holes were made in partitions with but little damage. Glassware in a china cabinet was broken and silver napkin rings were partially melted. About 200 stations of the local telephone exchange were put out of commission and residents on several streets were without electric lights for the remainder of the night.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Lyman Howe Will Show the California Expositions on Films.

Since the completion of the Panama canal is the greatest physical achievement in history, it is fitting that the event should be celebrated in a manner commensurate with the event. How well the expositions are doing this may be realized only after seeing Lyman H. Howe's filmation of the event itself, the completion and operation of the Panama canal—and also the celebrations both at San Francisco and San Diego at the opera house on Friday, Sept. 17. These expositions mark an epoch or era on life's highway and as such no one can afford to miss seeing them through the medium of Mr. Howe's superb film reproduction. They are as perfect as anything the hand or mind of man has ever wrought. In the scenes of the San Francisco exposition, "Howe travelers" will gaze upon an epochal achievement—a city of palaces the like of which has never been seen before. Every foot of the film exhibited by Howe commands admiration. Just as the exposition itself stands as a monument to the combined genius of the most noted artists, architects, sculptors, engineers and gardeners from all corners of the earth, so, too, is Howe's filmation the very epitome of artistic photography. The beauty of it all has never been equaled, even by a mirage. The superb palaces and magnificent pavilions set amid luxuriant tropical foliage afford wonderful vistas—a magic land of enchantment. The San Diego exposition seems like a bit of Old Castile transplanted to our shores.

While "A Trip to the California Expositions Through the Panama Canal" will be the predominant feature of the new Lyman H. Howe program, there will also be many other splendid subjects widely diversified in character, one of which imparts the sensations of a ride on a submarine.—Adv.

MAY LOSE EYESIGHT.

Bennington Youth Was Injured by Peas from Shotgun.

Bennington, Sept. 16.—Walter Hollister, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hollister of Grove street, is one of the Troy hospitals, where he was taken by automobile Wednesday night. The physician, who made an examination of the boy before he was taken to the hospital stated that he believed that one eye was destroyed and that the other was severely injured.

The boy's injuries resulted from the firing of a charge of Canada peas from a single-barreled shotgun in the hands of C. P. Oatman, who lives on Pleasant street, about 9 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Oatman says that the gun was accidentally discharged.

At the time of the shooting the Hollister boy and another lad whose name could not be learned were in the act of stealing grapes from a vine in the rear of Mr. Oatman's house.

As soon as he realized that the boy was seriously hurt, Mr. Oatman summoned Dr. A. S. M. Chisholm, who made an examination and decided that the case was one for hospital treatment. The boy, accompanied by his mother, was taken to Eugene Lafortune's care and hurried to Troy. The specialist at the hospital who examined the boy said that the case was serious.

Mr. Oatman has been much annoyed recently by boys and young men who have stolen his apples, grapes and even potatoes. Raids on his fruit were made Sunday and Monday nights. He was on guard both nights and Sunday night says he struck a young man over the shoulder with a club while the thief was appropriating grapes.

Yesterday he took a shotgun shell, extracted the wad and shot and filled the chamber in the shell with peas. He concealed himself behind a large rose bush near the grape vines with the purpose of firing the peas into the legs of the fruit thieves in case any visited his premises.

About 9 o'clock the two boys climbed the fence in the rear of the Oatman property and approached the grape vines. Mr. Oatman rose from the chair in which he had been sitting and the boys began to run toward Pleasant street.

Mr. Oatman says that he did not raise the gun to his shoulder, but that while he was endeavoring to locate the safety catch his finger pressed the trigger with sufficient strength to release the firing mechanism and the gun was discharged.

Mr. Oatman found the boy sitting on the ground and questioned the lad regarding the identity of his companion. Young Hollister said that he did not know the other boy's name, that he met him on the street and they were on their way to attend the moving pictures when the boy who escaped suggested that they get some grapes.

A GRASSHOPPER CROP.

Made More Out of It Than He Did for His Hay Crop.

White River Junction, Sept. 16.—Joseph Saladino, who operates what is known as the Houghton stock farm at Concord, N. H., has had an experience with grasshoppers this season. The farm has 150 acres of tillage land, with a fine meadow reaching to the Connecticut river. From the meadow Mr. Saladino cut but one load of hay. The grasshoppers got the rest. The pests also damaged the oat crop to such an extent that he did not thresh it.

By an act of the New Hampshire legislature a bounty of one dollar per bushel is paid on grasshoppers. Instead of mowing for hay Mr. Saladino moved for grasshoppers and was successful in gathering 27 bushels, receiving twice as much money as the value of the hay harvested. He attached sacks to his rake and caught the hoppers by driving over the fields in the customary way.

Despite his short hay crop, Mr. Saladino is an exhibitor of Ayrshire cattle at the state fair, showing 16 head of fine stock.

France's National Museum.

The Musee Carnavalet of Paris is also known as the National museum, for it contains objects pertaining to the history of France and especially of the French revolution. The sacredness of antiquity clings to the building itself, which was begun in 1544 and enlarged in 1690 by Mansart, the famous architect of Louis XIV. In 1677 it became the home of Mme. de Sevigne, who lived there for eighteen years and after whom the street is named that faces the principal entrance. Among the contents of this museum are fragments and statues from noted old buildings which no longer exist. There are also a weird portrait done in wax of Henry IV, made the day after his assassination, and an autograph order from Louis XVI, for the defenders of the Tuilleries to cease firing. Things of historic interest are numerous, but none more singular than the copy of the constitution of 1793 bound in human skin.
